Objectives:

- To spread the significance of the day among all
- To sensitize mass people about the day.
- To make people active in protecting human rights.

Description (Briefly):

As part of project activities Human Rights Day 2020 is celebrated in 24 unions of Thakurgaon and Panchagarh districts with the theme of "Now is the time to turn around and ensure human rights". Rallies and discussion meetings were held to mark the day. Rallies and discussions are attended by elected representatives, students, CSO members and various professionals. The negotiators said that in the discussion meetings, we are going through a difficult situation. Inequality increased further during the Corona epidemic. At this time people are being violated in various ways. So we need to raise awareness about human rights from the grassroots level. As if no human being is facing any such incident. There has been a lot of progress in the economic development of the country but the human rights situation has not improved satisfactorily. All unjust practices and injustices must be removed from the society and rights must be established. A state can never move towards development without ensuring human rights. Just as the government will work to establish human rights, we must all play a role in our respective fields.
